

Prayer for recently divorced woman (in Iran) (her words in italics)

Jesus, thank you for leading me through this time. I praise you for being my Savior, my Comforter, my Helper, and my Strength. Thank you for catching all my tears and caring about each one of them. Thank you for the freedom and forgiveness you have already given me. Thank you for any healing and freedom you want for me today. I choose Jesus today and forever. I belong to Jesus, and no one else.

I see the little kid and her hand is in Jesus' hand and she is going with Jesus. But she has small tears in her face. She wants go with Jesus, and she is going already, but some times she looks behind her and cries.

Jesus, thank you for caring for this little one. Please help us to understand what is holding her back from completely going with you. Jesus, I pray that you give to this little one your eyes to see the truth.

She looks behind her and she thinks why did these things happen for her? She didn't deserve it. She cries for herself both now and her previous life. Not her precious life.

Jesus, thank you for holding onto this little one. (What I type next will be for you to talk to the little one)

Little N, I can't explain everything to you. Why all this happened. There are so many reasons. Jesus has been showing you some of them but there are many we still do not understand. I know this is so hard for you, and you want to understand. I have learned to trust Jesus to show me what I need to know, in His timing, and in His way.

Your tears and heart is very precious to Jesus, but even though we will never understand all of the reasons, Jesus knows how to help us, forgive us, cleanse us, and give us a new life.

In many ways our old life is over, it has changed, and won't be the same. But Jesus can give us a new life, a new heart, and new opportunities. What has happened is not the end. Little one, this isn't the end for you. Jesus knows how to make new beginnings, new life, and this is what He has already begun for us.

He has your hand. He is holding my hand. And He holds our soft, wounded hearts, too. He will never let go.

I trust Him, but I'm sorry for myself.

Look in front of you, little one. There is a light there. Jesus is leading you and me into this light. Little one, in this new light is our new life, but there are some things we have to leave behind. Self-pity is one of them.

I want to forget past time and enter to new life.

Little one, the self-pity is a big burden on your heart. For years you have believed that this helps you, but it doesn't. It is time to let it go. Jesus will help you. He knows how to gently remove this from your heart. Hold very still, and close your eyes if you want, and just say to Jesus:

“Here is my heart, Jesus. I trust you. Please remove anything from me that you do not want in my heart. My self-pity, and anything else that hurts me, and hurts others, and hurts you, Jesus. (just be quiet for a moment) Jesus, place into my heart what you want in there instead. I receive all you want for me.”

I saw a box, and someone wants to open it, but it was difficult to open. Anyway he could do it, he could open it. On the box was my heart . I mean it was a heart on it, and I knew that it is mine. He start to clean it, and says: “This is starting of our new life.” He put it in my body now, right now, and says: “In the beginning maybe it will be a little hard to get with this new life, but you will be. He showed me a room with some gifts on it and says this is yours because you accept my invitation. I was waiting for this period of your life and waiting for you to pass it. You have to be equipped again, more than before, and I'll tell you what you should do next. For now just equip yourself because you will need it.”

Accept the box, N, and everything in it.

I receive this from you, Jesus, and trust you to show me where to go, and what to do. Lead me each step of the way and I will follow wherever you take me. There is an old box behind the little one. It holds all of the things Jesus took out from your heart. Little one, this is what you must leave behind. You can't have both boxes. It's ok. Jesus only gives good gifts. Turn forward now and go with Him into the light, in front of you, and don't worry about leaving it behind. Jesus knows what to do with it, and He knows how to protect you without your self-pity and the other things He removed. Jesus, as you walk forward with us, may my life reflect only You. I choose Jesus. I belong to Jesus.

All past ties or connections with anyone that do not belong, I break them now by the power and blood of Jesus Christ. My body is a temple of the Holy Spirit, and I choose to honor only Jesus with my body and everything in it. I choose Jesus. I am yours, Jesus, forever. Thank you for my new heart and new life. Show me your way. I choose your way and plan today. Amen.
